SDS NEW LEFT NOTES

Vol. [illegible], Number [illegible] LET THE PEOPLE DECIDE November [illegible], [illegible]

An attempt by SDS evaluate and analyze the elections strategy of the Times would be absurdly premature. This evaluation, in terms of the political development of the organization, impact on building regions, and the success of the program in moving us beyond the campus, must be made in the months ahead. We are still gathering reports from many parts of the country, and it is clear that reports on demonstrations, actions, teach-ins, tactics, sit-ins, arrests, confrontations, will come in from literally hundreds of campuses and high schools in the next weeks.

It is impossible to describe any patterns or generalize about the actions around the country, because locally organizers have differing criteria for evaluating the actions. Six people came to a SDS in Seattle, but it was regarded as a good action because it united the student movement and turned people on. A nearly 100-attendee class boycott [illegible] at Antioch College, but
